CAPITAL STONEWORKS PROJECT RESORATION

Michigan's Central Station first opened its doors in 1913, over a century ago! Throughout its storied history, it welcomed notable travelers such as Theodore Roosevelt, Charlie Chaplin, Franklin Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, and Thomas Edison. In 1975, the station was added to the National Register of Historic Places. At its peak, the station serviced over 4,000 passengers daily. However, after 74 years of operation, the last train departed in 1988.

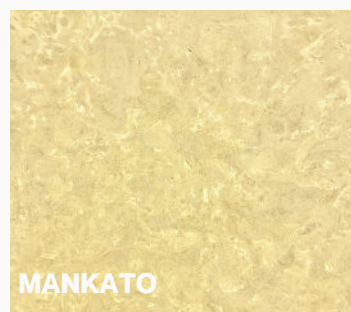

Since its closure, many restoration and demolition efforts were proposed, including an unsuccessful restoration plan in 1995 and a failed demolition in 2009. Finally, in 2018, Ford Motors purchased the station, marking a turning point in its revival—and that's where Capital Stoneworks comes in.

Capital Stoneworks was selected as the supplier and fabricator for the stone in this extensive restoration. Our skilled team, led by expert carver John Goodrow meticulously recreated original pieces, combining hand-carving techniques with precision CNC machining. Dark Hallow Rift limestone was used throughout the station's exterior, carefully restoring its historic charm. We are proud to have played a role in bringing this iconic landmark back to life. Construction was completed spring of 2024, the station is now open to the public once again.
